Mansour sells watermelons in the market.

Mansour sees the beautiful Marissa.

Mansour asks permission to marry Marissa from her father.

Marissa’s father says that Mansour needs more coins to marry Marissa.

Mansour is nice to the donkey and feeds him hay.

Mansour asks his uncle for money, but his uncle cannot remember where his coins are.

Mansour buys his uncle’s donkey.

Mansour’s uncle dies.

The donkey shows Mansour where the coins are buried.

Mansour has enough coins to marry Marissa.